Private Sector Engagement Hub

The U.S. Government can't achieve global food security alone. We need businesses with expertise and a desire to expand into new markets to help make it happen.

Are you a business with great products, services or resources, looking for opportunities to partner with Feed the Future, the U.S. Government's global hunger and food security initiative?

Together, we can equip smallholder farmers with the tools, skills, resources and linkages needed to improve their incomes, helping sustainably grow and transform agricultural economies into healthy ones that benefit us all.

Use our new Opportunity Explorer: Private Sector Engagement [1] tool to:

- Explore opportunities
- Register your specific interests
- Get matched to the right person to address your inquiries

Check out our About Partnering [2] and Get Started [3] sections to learn more about a public-private partnership with Feed the Future.

Feed the Future also serves as the principal vehicle through which the United States contributes to the New Alliance for Food Security and Nutrition [4], a global partnership between African governments, donors and the private sector to increase investment in agriculture and reduce poverty in Africa.
